

TAX RESOLUTION MAY BE PASSED IN SENATE TODAY

Bill Already Passed by House and Approved by Senate Committee

TARIFF UP FOR DEBATE

Wool Schedule Arouses Greatest Opposition Because of Increase

By William K. Hutchinson
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The $160,000,000 tax reduction resolution may pass the Senate today if Democratic-insurgent leaders agree to lay aside the tariff bill long enough to enact the administration's Christmas gift to Federal taxpayers.

The tax reduction bill, already passed by the House, was unanimously approved by the Senate finance committee, talk of amending it being dissipated at the last moment. A small group of insurgents, however, may seek in the Senate, to postpone the reduction of corporation taxes for one year, applying the slash to 1929 earnings instead of 1929 incomes. They argued this was necessary because the corporation already had collected their taxes for this year from the consuming public.

The tariff bill meanwhile held the right of way, with debate centering on the wool schedule. The Senate finance committee's action in boosting the rate of woolen rags to 31 cents a pound aroused the greatest opposition. Led by Senator Blaine (R) of Wis., group of Democrats and insurgents charged this increased duty would wipe out cheap woolen clothing for men, women and children, administration leaders were seeking a compromise but expected to retain the rate even if worked to a finish battle.

Leaders at both ends of the Capitol meanwhile made their plans for a Christmas recess. The Republican leaders have agreed to a vacation from Saturday, December 21, through to Monday, January 6. This would enable west coast Senators and representatives to visit their homes over the holidays.

Talk persisted the Democratic-insurgent coalition in the Senate would seek to shorten the recess in order to provide more time for debate on the tariff but their leaders were said to favor the administration's vacation plans.

While the tariff bill may interfere with the vacation, the tax bill apparently will be rushed through the Senate in short order. Senator Watson (R) of Ind., majority leader, said he expected it to pass with only a few hours' debate, since Democratic leaders already approved it.

The resolution would slash 1929 normal income taxes one per cent for both individuals and corporations. The greatest relief consequently will be given to the lowest bracket of income taxpayers, those in the class of incomes under $10,000. This group, numbering 2,005,000 out of a total of 2,440,000 Federal tax payers, will be given a cut of $25,000,000 out of a total of $61,550,000 reduction on individual taxes, the corporations will get approximately $100,000,000 reduction.

A handful of insurgents, led by Senator Nye (R) of N. D. and some Democrats, led by Senator George (D) of Ga., would postpone this corporation slash for another year.

Both Senators protested the slash would act as a "bonus" to the corporations, since they already had collected this year's taxes as a part of their current business. This contention was denied by administration spokesmen, who argued corporation stockholders pay the taxes and the consumer does not.

THRIFT CLUBS CHANGE ATMOSPHERE AT THIS SEASON OF THE YEAR; EASY TO SPOT THE PATRONS

Including today there are only 14 shopping days to Christmas.

There is, this year, a something besides the usual Christmas cheer in the air. It isn't the feeling of extravagance that so often characterizes this time, but an atmosphere of satisfaction that comes from calculated thrift. The thrift clubs of the banks, in which one saves a small sum weekly for next year's Christmas money, were well patronized last year. Accounts and well-planned budgets have grown in numbers.

It is easy to spot the patrons of the thrift clubs, the owners of the "accu-

Industrial Magnates Meet President

Nothing can stop the onward march of the United States. Business is good and bids fair to continue. This has been manifest by the magnates of the business world who called at the White House to confer with President Hoover and their fellow magnates to advance the nation's prosperity. ST. MARK'S POOR BOXES ROBBED EARLY TODAY

Some of the Candle Shrines
Are Also Damaged By Marauders

LOSS AMOUNTS TO $50

A thief or thieves broke open and robbed the poor boxes of St. Mark's Church this morning. There was a service at eight o'clock and the robbery was discovered at about 10 o'clock. It is presumed that the depredation was committed sometime in the interval.

Not only were the poor boxes robbed but some of the candle shrines were damaged.

It is not known exactly how much money was in the poor boxes as members of the congregation dropped their contributions for the poor and needy into these boxes at their own convenience. It is presumed, however, that the damage done to the shrines and the amount of money taken from the boxes will total at least $50.

It is a mean thief who will rob a poor box of the church. It cannot be conceived that the work is that of an adult but rather of a child who does not realize the meanness of his act.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY TO GIVE PRODUCTION HERE

Ascension Dramatic Society of Philadelphia to Present
Three-Act Comedy

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 13TH

The Ascension Dramatic Society of Philadelphia will present in St. Mark's Auditorium on Friday evening, the popular three-act comedy, "Meet The Wife," under the auspices of Bristol Council, Knights of Columbus.

The play is built around the social and literary ambition of "Gertrude Lennox," who is a celebrity-worshipping tuft hunter living in the suburbs. Twice married, she thanks goodness she is still the "captain of her soul." Her latest crush is Philip Lord, London novelist, whom she has invited to a luncheon.

Mr. Lord, on arrival, turns out to be Mrs. Lennox's first husband whom she has mourned as dead ever since he disappeared in the San Francisco fire and earthquake. She is considerably taken back, not to say disturbed, by the discovery that she is, in effect, a bigamist, but Mr. Lord is quite content to disappear a second time. Mr. Lennox, the second husband, is busily inquiring the way to other earthquake centers at the play's close.

The leading male character is portrayed by James Maguire, formerly of Bristol, who will be remembered for his successes in various character roles with the Knights of Columbus Players of some years ago, and who is now a veteran in amateur theatrical productions in Philadelphia.

"The difficult part of 'Gertrude Lennox' is very ably interpreted by Miss Regina Rooney, who is one of the most popular amateur performers in Northeast Philadelphia. They are ably supported by a well-balanced cast including John Rowan, Jane Jerwyn, Joseph Gaynor, Howard Becker, Kathryn Faulkner and George Malpass.

FOUR END LIVES IN BUCKS COUNTY IN WEEK

Record is Set, It is Believed,
By Large Number Who Commit Suicide

TWO AT DOLINGTON

Four suicides in Bucks County within a week, is believed to be a record. One occurred in Bristol, one at Oxford Valley, and two at Dolington.

Wilson Cadwalader, 84 years old, one of the best known residents of Dolington, was found hanging early yesterday morning from a mulberry tree in the rear of the town graveyard.

The body was discovered shortly after daybreak by John Major, of Dolington, and was still warm when Major, along with his neighbors, John Cox and Stanley McCarty, cut it down. Bucks County Coroner Dr. John J. Sweeney viewed the body and issued a burial permit, recording the death as suicide.

Cadwalader apparently stepped off a low wall that skirts the burying ground after securing a short rope to a tree branch. When found, Cadwalader's right foot was resting on the top of the wall, while his other foot was touching the ground. His left arm also was resting on the wall.

The scene of the hanging is close by the spot where Cadwalader's wife was buried some ten years ago and directly behind his former residence when he was a caretaker at the Friends' Meeting House. It is believed that the victim walked from the William Doan Farm, at Newtown, where he has been living in recent weeks while working as a laborer, taking the noose along to end his life near his wife's grave.

The graveyard is only a short distance from the residence of Harry Tomlinson, who ended his life last week by inhaling carbon monoxide gas from his automobile.

Despondency over poor health and his failure to find employment is believed to have led Samuel C. Niblick, 74 years old, of Oxford Valley, to inflict razor cuts in his throat that led to his death at a Trenton hospital on Saturday night. He slashed himself as he was shaving at his home Saturday.

A short time after he arose Saturday, Niblick lathered his face in the kitchen of his home. Then, in the presence of his wife and one of their three sons, he muttered something unintelligible and made two quick strokes with the razor and fell to the floor.

Mrs. Niblick summoned Dr. E. S. Huntsman, of Hulmeville, who ordered the victim's immediate removal to a Trenton hospital.

Niblick's loss of blood, however, greatly minimized his chances of recovery, his death coming shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Boy Scouts,

My dear Mr. Buckman:

I enclosed find check toward the Boy Scout Fund. Also allow me to express my appreciation of the scout spirit of some of our boys in Bristol, especially one Lester Risser, who showed his true scout character one day last week, when my grand-daughter was maliciously rough-handled by several non-scout boys on her way home from school. He came to her rescue, saved her from further insult like a gentleman, kept his faithful eye on her, and saw her safely home. I want to thank him for it thru you, Mr. Buckman, that such boys as he may be further encouraged with their noble spirit. I deeply appreciate such characters in the lives of our boys.

Yours truly,

ITALIAN WELFARE RAISES $600 AT OPENING OF DRIVE

Fifth Annual Dinner is Held and Attended by 150
People

JUDGES PRAISE WORK

Report for Past Year Shows
Great Amount of Aid
Given Poor

Six hundred dollars was contributed within five minutes yesterday afternoon at the opening of the drive for funds for the Italian Welfare Association. The campaign got under way at the fifth annual dinner held in St. Ann's Auditorium which was attended by nearly 150 persons.

Today a committee of solicitors will begin a house to house canvass of the Italian residents of Bristol to bring this fund up to a figure which will exceed $1,000.

The dinner was held at five o'clock and was attended by individuals of prominence from the various sections of Bucks County as well as a distinguished Italian judge from Newark, N. J.

Speeches were made, there was a program of vaudeville and an excellent menu was served which had been prepared by the Sisters of St. Ann's Catholic Church.

The long tables sparkling in their immaculateness and adorned with blooming potted plants and cut flowers made a most attractive setting. The national colors of America and Italy were profusely festooned about the spacious hall.

The honored guests included Judge Hiram H. Keller, Bucks County; Judge Nicholas Albano, Third Criminal Court, Newark, N. J.; Theodore Watson, H. Harry Clayton, and Carlisle Hobensack, Doylestown. These along with the officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary and of the Italian Welfare Association occupied seats at the speakers' table.

During the serving of the menu there was a program of vaudeville entertainment given by a company of Philadelphia artists managed by Giuseppe Russo. The services of this company were given free and Mr. Russo agreed to bring his organization to Bristol free of charge at any time that the Welfare Association desires.

Anthony Russo, president of the Association, was the toastmaster. In his opening remarks he outlined the objects and purposes of the dinner and presented his annual report of the work which has been accomplished during the past year.

"We spent $200 more than we collected this year," said Mr. Russo. He then proceeded to give the details covered in his report dated December 5, 1928, to November 20, 1929:

Groceries, $445.93; clothing, $138.45; shoes, $195.15; Christmas checks, $80; medicine, $52.53; coal, $36.90; tickets for dinner, 1928-1929, $30; buttons and badges, $20.80; fare to Italy and other expenses for war veterans, $146.71; total, $1,149.44.

Continuing Mr. Russo further explained the report by stating that $28.90 of the total had been spent for relief in the first ward, $36.23 for second ward, $5 in Third Ward, $384.70 in fourth ward, $456.91 in fifth ward and $154.55 in sixth ward.

"Twenty families applied for aid and in these there were 31 adults and 91 children," concluded the speaker.

The Rev. Isidore Jenne and Angelo DiRenzo, both appealed to the gathering in behalf of the drive. Both men spoke in Italian.

The next speaker was Judge Hiram H. Keller who expressed his pleasure at being present and who brought greetings from President Judge William C. Ryan, who due to illness was unable to attend.

Judge Keller complimented the Welfare Association for the fine work which it is doing. He told the audience that he believed that more demands would be made upon the organization this year than ever before. "We always have the poor with us," he said. "It is our duty—we who are more fortunate to look after the less fortunate." He referred to the Christmas season—the season of gift giving in celebration of the birth of Christ and he told of the joy which comes to those who gave aid to those who were in need.

Judge Nicholas Albano, Newark, was the next speaker. Judge Albano came all the way from Newark especially to attend the dinner and aid the cause. He gave a most inspiring and instructive talk. He told of the outstanding men of Italy in the past, naming those who had achieved prominence in art, science, literature, music, patriotism and statesmanship. "But these are men of the past," said the speaker. "But you Italian-Americans should let them and their works be an inspiration for you being better Americans and try to exemplify such men as Franklin, Washington, McKinley and Roosevelt.

"Love Italy, love your parents, but above all love America."

Judge Keller was presented with a

HOOVER CANONIZED

President Hoover has in various ways made an impress on the country during his few months in the White House. He has shown himself to be a much more sagacious politician than his glib detractors imagined him to be. In fitting his policies to the needs of the time and the expectations of the people, he has displayed penetrating qualities of mind. His simplicity of personal bearing, too, his utter lack of affectation and disdain of official pomp, have won him a distinct place in the gallery of national portraits. Attribute as much of his success as we please to good fortune, there remains enough which is his individual achievement.

Public men and politicians come and go, but it will be found in the long run that none of them acquire so much influence, or last so well, as the man who can speak to the people with the weight of an assured character.

Hoover is not a brilliant man and he never seeks the applause of the crowd. But he stands so four-square, is so honest and has such a sound judgment that his siding with one policy or another is felt to be like a reinforcement by a powerful army.

There are, of course, examples of men of showy abilities and fascinating personalities who appear for a time to run away with everything. The American people have been under the spell of such men but great as is their charm, wonderful as is their following, which they so easily gather, their display of fireworks usually fades and falls while the fixed stars of the public men of strong and steadfast character continue to shine.

PULLING TOGETHER

Conclusion of the Hoover conferences brought two kinds of results. The first and more important was a swing in business psychology from a defeatist attitude to one of reassurance and determination to "carry on." The second achievement was the projection of definite building expansion programs which should meet the problem of keeping employment and purchasing power at a healthy level. The meetings, therefore, attained their purpose in restoring confidence and in bringing forward the work which should act to offset sagging tendencies.

It is entirely too early, of course, to note any reflection of these moves in general business conditions. Due to the approach of inventory periods, little change may be expected for the immediate future, but all feel that it will come as a result of the return of public sentiment to normalcy.

The conferences and the crisis that inspired them have developed that, while industry possesses a mass of statistical data upon its operations little progress has been made in coordinating either this information or various activities. A move in that direction is being started at Washington and it is to be hoped that a helpful plan of co-operation will triumph over the nations of individualists. Unfortunately for business, professional jealousies and self-aggrandizement in the trade executive ranks have retarded the co-ordination and co-operation which would go so far in stabilizing progress.

"IS EVERYBODY HAPPY?"

By ELEANORE CAREY

Copyright 1929 Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring Ted Lewis

SYNOPSIS

Arrived in New York from Budapest, Ted Todd, son of the great violinist and conductor, Victor Molnar, is forced to pawn the violin that an Emperor had given his father, to pay the rent and to buy a saxophone. Through the advice of a theatrical producer, he gets a job playing jazz music in a Hungarian cafe, but tells his parents it is with the New York Symphony Orchestra. His father despises jazz. His parents attend the opening concert of the orchestra but do not find their son. Stopping at a Hungarian cafe, they discover Ted playing the loathed jazz.

INSTALLMENT XI

Ted looked so forlorn—so much as if he had lost his best friend—that she hesitated to know just what to say to him. Finally she decided to treat it as if it were of no great importance, and she said to Ted, almost casually, "Don't try to talk to your father any more now. He is far too excited. It would be far wiser to wait until he has calmed down—until what seems at the moment to be a terrible disappointment, has settled itself on its own merits. He'll soon realize the true circumstances, and then everything will be all right. He will be proud of you. You will only make it worse by trying to talk to him now."

The manager, perplexed, took in his conversation with little interest. It wasn't good business for the management, nor for Ted, to slight the people who were so loudly acclaiming him.

"You were wonderful, Ted."

"What's all the trouble? Forget it and go out there and give them an encore. Why, kid, you stopped the show! Can't you hear 'em calling for you?"

Ted's eyes were glued to the doorway through which his parents had just passed. "I'm not going out there again tonight," he said absently.

When Gail heard this, she took hold of both Ted's arms and forced him to look at her. "Please listen, Ted," she said, "you're at the turning point of your career this minute, and you've got to go through with it. You can fix it up with your father later on—you've done the best you possibly could do—and all for them—so don't quit now. Let's see some spirit—fight the thing through! Go right out there and do that number!" Gail's heart began to beat once more when she saw Ted straighten himself out—pull himself together and heard him say:

"You're right, Gail; I'll do it!"

When Ted took his place before the audience, the applause increased and then ceased, waiting for him to begin. There was a new serious look upon his face and he went through the "red-hot" number in a new way. This time the audience saw a serious, almost tragic, young man—and his antics and cavorting about the stage were done without a smile. To the audience this was part of the show, and it made a tremendous hit. Gail was listening and watching the intent faces of the audience and then looked at Ted in rapt wonder. The manager nodded his approval to the band-leader, and Ted left the platform after he had finished seriously, tragically, and to the tumultuous applause of the spectators. Without knowing it, he had formed an individual style that was to mark him throughout his career as a unique personality. Amid the applause, which was deafening, and the approving nods and whispers in the audience, Ted forced his way back to the ante-room where Gail was waiting for him. He seemed to be oblivious to the sensation he had caused and Gail, appreciating this—came close to him and with enthusiasm, said:

"You were wonderful, Ted, wonderful. Now you have something new—something unusual. You have developed an original style of your own. It's great, Ted, and it makes me so proud of you!"

Ted was plainly pleased. The approbation of this girl meant a great deal to him and he smiled his pleasure at her, as he looked into her eyes. But then, that little

Tuning in on the Talkies

WILL this "glorifying" never end? The obliging ladies of the chorus having gone the limit on external disclosures, "The Heart of a Foolies Girl" is now on view.

"Hold Your Horses" was filmed in an era when there were horses to hold.

"Love, Honor and Behave" exacts more than the usual "one thing at a time" the average man is able to accomplish.

"The Crash" may often be attributed to "The Careless Age."

"The Lady Who Lied" has been preserved in film records for the benefit of posterity.

While horses, dogs, wives and moustaches are barred from West Point, Rin Tin Tin crashes the gate because he is an actor.

"Heaven on Earth" has finally been attained. But it is only in a film title.

Here's some bad news for "Peeping Toms." "Lady Godiva" was filmed before screen queens bobbed their hair.

For "Double Feature" Day
"Eve's Leaves."
"Hold Everything."

Making allowance for good intentions, the music of some theme songs is not as bad as it sounds.

Tuning in on the Talkies by Walthill

ON the front of a movie theatre where attractions were shifted twice a week the announcement sign read:

"Modern Love." Changes Monday and Thursday.

The long-skirt drive against "Loose Ankles" may eventually interfere with "Freedom of the Seas."

It was a film fire in Hollywood and not "The Sacred Flame" that consumed "Hell's Angels."

"Owl Movies" are the latest Manhattan dissipation, with shows continuing on from midnight to dawn.

Soon the fans will be dying to get some sleep.

Although Lila Lee has taken "Flight" from Warner Bros., she still has a "Drag" with First National.

The "out-standing feature" of a popular talkie is the crowd that waits patiently in line to get within ear-shot.

"Jazz Heaven" will be to some people the place where no jazz is.

Enriching Current Slang "No wise cracks from the broken crockery" is a whimsie from the new talkie "So Long Letty."

Take-Offs Grow Hectic In the dumb era of photoplaying a film was modestly titled "The dressed."

A stage play now running on Broadway is "Stripped."

For "Double Feature" Day "One Night of Love." "See You In Jail."

"Song of the West" will be pictured in natural color with Verlonne Segal, a coloratura soprano, its prima donna.

Colored Infant Found On Doorstep at Morrisville

MORRISVILLE, Dec. 9.—When Mr. and Mrs. George A. Botherstone arrived home a few evenings ago, they found an odd-looking bundle on the door step.

Mr. Botherstone struck a match and the feeble glow revealed a colored infant, about six weeks old, securely wrapped in a blanket and old clothes. They took the child to the bridge house, at the Morrisville end of the bridge, and awakened Chris Sittler, an officer.

"What shall we do with it?" they asked. The officer scratched his head with perplexity.

Just then John H. Cooper, another bridge officer who was going off duty, solved the problem. He took it to his home and turned the infant girl over to his son, Chief Albert Cooper, who in turn carried the infant to McKinley Hospital, Trenton, and there it was given treatment.

At the hospital when nurses unwrapped the various garments with which the infant had been protected against the cold, a note was found pinned to an old brown sweater. It read: "This baby is from New York. Please take good care of it. My husband left me sick. Her name is Ellie John from New York."

The infant appeared none the worse for its experience on the cold door step.

"She is in very good condition," a nurse reported at the hospital, "and she's just darling."

Some time later disposition of the child's case will be made, and it is believed it will be given a home if the parents are not found.

GRAND THEATRE

"They Had To See Paris." Will Rogers' first all talking picture, will be the attraction at the Grand Theatre tonight and tomorrow evening. The story was written by Homer Croy, the dialogue by Owen Davis, Sr., dean of American playwrights. Frank Borzage directed the production and Bernard Steele staged it. It is a Fox Movietone production.

The story deals with the sudden rise to wealth of an Oklahoma family when an oil well comes in a gusher, and their desire to see Paris individually and collectively.

The trip is made in grand style, and once in the French metropolis Mrs. Peters is determined to marry her daughter to a title. She plunges into society in spite of the protests of her less ambitious husband.

The events that follow are as laughable as they are costly, and keep the
